About the Air Force Museum Foundation, Inc.:

The Air Force Museum Foundation (AFMF) was founded in 1960 as the philanthropic corporation that assists in the development and expansion of the facilities of the National Museum of the United States Air Force™ (NMUSAF), located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio. In addition to funding capital construction and facility improvements, the Foundation provides annual funding to the Museum for special projects and underwrites several programs involving a wide range of activities geared toward education, volunteer support, special events, and promotional efforts.

Since its inception, AFMF has gifted $87.3M (approximately $140M in today's dollars) to the U.S. Air Force for capital construction, including $40.8M for the recent successful fourth building capital campaign. The fourth building opened to the public in June 2016.

AFMF funds special events such as exciting exhibit openings including the Space Shuttle Exhibit and the Doolittle Tokyo Raiders Congressional Gold Medal exhibit, and supports monthly Family Days, the Living History Film Series, and Space Fest. AFMF gifted over $2M for events and programs in the past five years.

About the National Museum of the United States Air Force:

The NMUSAF is located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton, Ohio, and is the service's national institution for preserving and presenting the Air Force story. Each year more than one million onsite visitors learn about the mission, history and evolving capabilities of America's Air Force.

The museum is the world's largest military aviation museum featuring more than 360 aerospace vehicles and missiles on display amid more than 17 acres of indoor exhibit space. Thousands of personal artifacts, photographs and documents further highlight the people and events that comprise the Air Force storyline, from the beginnings of military flight to today's war on terrorism.
